Longview Architect Coming to Seattle

Daniel R. Huntington, former Seattle city architect, has announced that he has taken into partnership Arch M. Torbitt, who comes to Seattle from Longview, where he was engaged by the Long-Bell Lumber Company in designing some of the most important buildings of that city. Mr. Torbitt designed the library, railway station and school buildings for Longview. He was in St. Louis before going to Longview.

Mr. Huntington, who was city architect nine years, has been in business here five years and was the designer of the Lake Union steam plant of the City Light Department, the Firlands Hospital and the Northcliffe Apartments.
