WAS

In the death of Thornton F. Doan, of Bellingham, on December 19, the Washington State Architect Society loses a valued charter member.

Always active in the work of the Society and of the Washington State Architect, paper of the organization, until his illness, Mr. Doan made many trips from Bellingham to Seattle to be present at the meetings.

His illness began at the time his work had gained for him a place in architecture which demanded more of his time than nature would stand; and very many excellent examples of his architectural work in the northern portion of the state testify to his worth.
