New U.S. Homes Could House 21,000,000

Enough new homes and apartments have been built by private builders in the United States in the past five years to cover the needs of eight of the largest cities in the nation or to accommodate half the population of England, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

At an average of a little less than four persons in the family, 21,000,000 people could be housed in the 5,000,000 home units the units of labor statistics show have been erected in the past five years.
