

EXPLORING LOCAL RESOURCES

FREE Educator Workshop – Wednesday, March 26, 2014, 2:00 - 5:30 p.m.

Join a team of local historians and educators to learn about new online resources for teachers and students while exploring two of Seattle's unique downtown museums: the Klondike Gold Rush Museum and Milepost 31. Seattle's newest major transportation projects will be discussed and ideas on how to explore these present-day historical events in the classroom will be examined. Teachers will receive packets of materials and free admission to the museums. Some walking required. Rain or shine. RSVP for workshop at education@historylink.org.

Workshop Co-Presenters:

Carol Buswell – Education Specialist, The National Archives at Seattle
Scott Davies -- Education Director, Pike Place Market
Patricia Filer – Education Director, HistoryLink.org
Katie Johnson – Outreach/Program Specialist, Seattle Times Newspapers In Education
Tim Karle – Education Specialist, Klondike Gold Rush NHP - Seattle
Jane Morton – Education Coordinator, Eastside Heritage Center
Jennifer Ott – Staff Historian, HistoryLink.org
Connie Walker Gray – Project Coordinator, 520History.org

Photo Credits and Captions:

- Secretary Hammond checks out the SR99 TBM model. Courtesy WSDOT.
- Junior Rangers at the Klondike Gold Rush Museum. Courtesy National Park Service.
- Children tour the Pike Place Market. Courtesy Mark Ahlness.

